

- A scale-free network has two basic properties:

- Expands continuously by adding new vertices
- New vertices attach preferentially to vertices that are already well connected
  - at a constant rate

∴ “Hubs” seen as important

